While the COVID-19 pandemic continues, it is believed the pandemic will end in the next year given the discovery and testing of a vaccine and medical treatments for the virus. Once it does, Connecticut will need to find new ways forward to support workers struggling in the midst of the pandemic. Topics of conversation will include the need to retrain workers in industries that may be slow to recover from the pandemic; how to help skilled workers seeking employment after layoffs; industries that may struggle in the aftermath of the pandemic; occupations expected to see fast recovery from the pandemic; and potential solutions to seek in the future.

JAY WILLIAMS
President of the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving

KELLI VALLIERES
Executive Director of the DECD Workforce Unit

ALEX JOHNSON
President of Capital Workforce Partners

MARK SHEINBERG
President of Goodwin College

Registration:
https://us02web.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_q6XzmvgoQRMdVpix_39ORA